

WHO/ICD training manual “Food Safety for Nutritionists and other Health Professionals”

This manual was developed to be used as part of a WHO/ICD integrated food safety training course for public health professionals. WHO and ICD strongly recommend that trainers wishing to use this manual in their own training courses first participate in a WHO/ICD food safety training course and trainers' workshop as this will help them to get the best from the manual. WHO/ICD food safety training course participants also receive copies of the quarterly newsletter "Food Safety Matters". Trainers who have not participated in a WHO/ICD food safety training course and trainers' workshop will not be eligible for ICD support for their training courses.

This manual is regularly updated and texts in other languages are planned. Comments and suggestions from readers are always welcome. Readers who register their details at the address below will receive news of amendments and updates.
